

Home School Information

Did you know that Colorado law recognizes that parents have the primary right and obligation to choose the proper education and training for children under their care and supervision?

Clear Creek School District recognizes home-based educational programs as a valid form of education and, therefore, wishes to help with providing it's public with as much information as possible. There are many things parents who wish to pursue this type of education for their child(ren) should know.

The following link to the Colorado Department of Education's Home School in Colorado website will be able to provide the necessary information to answer the questions you may have regarding home-based education.
